

Event-driven Architecture

What is Event-driven Architecture

Key Concepts

Benefits

What is Event-driven Architecture

Event-driven architecture is a software design pattern where components communicate by publishing and subscribing asynchronous events.

Key Concepts

Event

Notification that a change has occurred

Event producers

Components that generate (publish) events

Event consumers

Components that handle
(subscribe) events

Benefits

Loose Coupling

Modular Design

Asynchronous
Communication

Faster
Deployment